

Dr James Adamu Ijampy, International Editor, Abuja, Nigeria

Dr James Adamu Ijampy - Chief Agricultural Meteorologist of the Nigerian Meteorological Agency. He is the team Lead of the Seasonal Climate Prediction also the Focal Point for the WMO project. He is engaged in the integration of Climate Services to agricultural activity, Climate change adaptation in Agriculture and the downscaling of Seasonal Climate Outlook to rural communities. In striving to improve relationships and connections between meteorologist, users and decision-makers, Dr Adamu is also part of the Multi-disciplinary Working Group (MWG) in Nigeria, a core member of the Food Security Cluster of Nigeria. He is expert trainer in Nigeria, mainly in areas of the application of weather and climate information in climate risk management in agriculture.

Email:ijampy@gmail.com